FARMERS MEET IN PROTEST FOR PRICE RECEIVED FOR MILK

300 Dairymen Gather at Dublin; Against Philadelphia
Distributors

MAY ERECT A PLANT Form Organizations; Similar Action to Be Taken in Montgomery County

DUBLIN, July 27.—Three hundred farmers met here last night in protest over the price they are now receiving for milk from the Philadelphia distributors. As the result of the meeting an association has been formed and it is possible that a plant will be erected in Bucks County to handle the milk output of the various dairies.

There were heated discussions and the session lasted from 8.15 until after midnight. A Bucks County local of the Pennsylvania Farmers Protective Association was formed and tonight there will be a meeting held in Montgomery County at which similar action will be taken.

The farmers last night came from both Bucks and Montgomery counties and voiced their objection to receiving only 2½ cents to 3½ cents per quart for milk when it is sold in Philadelphia for from ten cents to 15 cents a quart.

The farmers claim that the price they now receive is only about one half of the production costs.

Resolutions were unanimously adopted whereby it was agreed to erect in Bucks County a plant to handle milk direct to either the consumer or the middleman.

Arthur M. Stover, was one of the objectors and he made the statement that every time a farmer sells a can of milk he gives away a piece of his land.

Bucks County dairies are going out of business because of the low price received for milk, it was stated at the meeting.

Both the Inter-State Milk Producers' Association and the Milk Distributors' Association of Philadelphia were invited to attend the meeting but were not represented.

WRECK AT TRENTON

Trenton, N. J., July 27.—A spectacular wreck of a fast freight train tied up five tracks on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Millham Junction, northeast of Trenton, early today. Twenty-one cars in a string of thirty-five were derailed and scattered over the right of way. No one was injured. The wreck occurred at 1.20 a. m. One track was cleared by 4.30 a. m. and a second at 5.05 a. m. Gradually normal service was being restored but it was not likely all tracks could be cleared before late afternoon. Delays of trains ranged from 20 to 40 minutes, officials said.

The wrecked train was bound from Jersey City to Philadelphia loaded with a miscellaneous cargo. The accident occurred opposite the plant of the Thermoid Rubber Company and several gondolas were flung against a section of the rubber company's fence, wrecking it. Cause of the wreck was attributed to the failure of the brakes on the second car of the string, with the result that this and twenty other cars left the rails.

CONFESSES MURDER

Oakland, Calif., July 27.—A University of California junior student confessed today according to police to the fendish knife murder of Mrs. Lillian Babcock, social leader of Manila and the probable fatal shooting of her husband, Wm. R. Babcock, wealthy importer and Olympic Games delegate at the couple's Los Altos home in Santa Clara Valley. Police said the youth gave his name as Douglas Templeton, Jr., 24. He was arrested in a restaurant, where he was working his way through college, as a cook. According to the officers Templeton said he plotted the crime when Babcock and his wife arrived here from Manila because he wanted to get their fortune estimated at forty or fifty thousand dollars.

General VonSchleicher introduced himself to the German people and the world in a nation-wide radio address which was virtually his first public appearance.

"LOGICAL THING: CLOSE DANGEROUS STRUCTURES"

So States Governor Pinchot
When Approached About
Highway Bridges

DISCUSSES CHEAP ROADS

HARRISBURG, July 27.—Light-type roads are not posted against heavy trucks, Governor Pinchot told Colonel F. A. Warner, of Allentown, who suggested that roads be built in which concrete enters in some form and that Pennsylvania rebuild highway bridges.

"I break no confidence when I tell you the Highway Department does not have sufficient funds to reconstruct the 2300 bridges on the State highway system," wrote the Governor. "That being true, it seems to me the logical thing is to close dangerous structures."

"Heavy freighters on trans-state roads are carrying loads far beyond limits conceived by road engineers of only 10 years ago. While we cannot rebuild all the bridges, the Highway Department seeks to bring them to the maximum carrying capacity permitted under the Motor Code."

"We do not expect macadam roads to carry the traffic of arterial thoroughfares, although many have done so for years. But we think it is folly to spend $50,000 a mile to carry traffic that can be handled by roads that cost approximately $6,000 a mile."

"If, as you say, certain township roads built in 1931 are already in need of repairs, you can be quite sure repairs will be made. Nor are we neglecting the 18-foot concrete roads built in 1919, 1920, and 1921, hundreds of miles of which have cracked and broken and otherwise failed to live up to the promise of bond issue enthusiasts. Many miles of the Gettysburg Pike, Adams county, in the vicinity of Harbor Creek, Erie county, and on other main thoroughfares, have been given a top dressing of bituminous material. The mistakes of the engineers, like the fabled mistakes of physicians, have been buried."

"You are right when you say we need more and wider highways. You are right when you say thousands of jobless men would be grateful for an opportunity to work. But where shall (Continued on Page 4)

Famous trails traveled by George Washington were re-traveled via the air route by his great-great-grandniece, Miss Ann Madison Washington, recently as a feature of the bicentennial celebrations. The area flown extended from Maine to North Carolina and westward to Ohio. Distances which took Washington 4½ days to negotiate on horseback were covered by air in 35 minutes. Miss Washington is shown with Major Jimmy Doolittle, who piloted her over the historic route, on the completion of her trip at Newark, N. J.

SEARCH FOR THIEF WHO BEAT AN EUREKA WOMAN

Autogiro Used in Attempt to Spot Automobile Used
By Man

ROBS MRS. C. CARVER

A thorough search is being made for the brutal thief who yesterday beat a woman almost insensible and then robbed her of her savings at Eureka, Bucks County. The woman, Mrs. Clara Carver, 38-year-old farmer's wife, was found by her husband. State Police enlisted the aid of an autogiro in an hour's search from the air yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Carver was found tied to a chair in a room on the second floor of her home in a hysterical condition. She said the intruder, wearing a black mask, walked into the house and demanded money. When she refused to give him any, she said, he tied her hands, took her to the second floor and beat her until she revealed where the money was.

The thief escaped with $200 in cash. The autogiro was obtained from a nearby flying field at Eureka and hovered over the vicinity of where Mrs. Carver and her husband, Abraham, reside, with Trooper Sergeant Davis aboard. Flying at a low altitude, Sergeant Davis prepared to signal to troopers scouting the vicinity in automobiles if the bandit-machine was spotted.

The search is being continued today by State Troopers who will endeavor to locate the machine used by the man.

Schedule for Tonight
A. O. H. vs. INDEPENDENTS
(St. Ann's Field)

Results of Last Night
INDEPENDENTS, 9; St. Ann's, 8
THIRD WARD, 9; EDGELY, 6

(By T. M. Juno)

The teams of the Bristol Twilight League were drawn a little closer together last night as the Independents handed the St. Ann's nine their first defeat of the second half by the score of 9-8 on St. Ann's field, and the Third Ward team traveled to Edgely to defeat the Edgelyites, 9-6.

In beating the "Saints" the Independent Club scored all of their nine runs in the third inning when "Spike" Scordia was driven from the mound and Narcisi replaced him. The St. Ann's team staged a rally in the last inning but fell one run short of the frame. Antonelli replaced Lasprella on the hill for the winners.

"Eddie" Fields, outfielder for the losers, got three hits and a pass in four times up to lead the bat wavers for the night. One of his hits was a triple to center in the last canto with two men on the sacks. Ralph Narcisi had a home run with one man on base in the fourth.

Too many errors were the cause of Edgely's defeat to the Third Warders. It was the winners' third victory of the second half and keeps them in the running for the second half honors.

Edgely had eight errors and all aided the Third Warders to add runs to their total. Brushia and Massilia with three hits each led the winners with the stick. Piazza, Felkner and Fice were the losers' best with two bingles each.

Edgely, Third Ward, and the Independents are tied for second place with three wins and three defeats each. St. Ann's is leading the league (Continued on Page 4)

WOMEN vs. MEN

By "The Stroller"

There must be something wrong with the theory that women are not as good drivers of automobiles as men, when one stops to consider the figures just made public by the Bureau of Highway Patrol and Safety at Harrisburg.

Of the 5,385 drivers involved in motor vehicle accidents in June, 4,336 were men and 449 were women.

The former reported 145 fatal accidents; the latter 11.

Sellersville Lad Returns After "Hitch" Tour to Coast

Traveling by practically every known means of transportation, Philip Weiss, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Weiss, of Rich Hill, near Sellersville, has returned home from a four-weeks' trip in which he covered about 9,000 miles.

Shortly after graduation from the Quakertown High School in June, the youth, accompanied by two friends, Charles Whaland and Francis Steskel, also of Rich Hill, set out on a vacation jaunt. After nearly three days' hiking, the party reached Harrisburg, where they succeeded in "hopping a freight" which carried them to the suburbs of Pittsburgh the next day.

Near Pittsburgh the boys became separated as they attempted to board another freight train when the strap on Weiss' knapsack broke and he was forced to jump off again to retrieve the contents. His friends waited in Pittsburgh for several days but missed him and returned to their homes a week after their start.

Weiss, however, continued his journey, touching the principal cities en route to the coast. One of the most exciting features of the entire trip was a flight on an airplane from Wichita, Kansas, to Denver, Colorado. Weiss also worked passage on a boat on the Great Lakes, hopped long distance buses, rode ash trains, and enjoyed several prolonged hikes when railroad detectives "shook down" the hobo passengers on freight trains.

The youthful traveler left his home with ten dollars and managed to increase the amount slightly by working in a restaurant in a small town for a dollar a day. His finances were lowered considerably by a fifty-mile hike in the Great Salt Lake section where his great thirst cost him five cents a glass for water. His last fifty cents was accidentally lost in a Colorado canyon when the piece slipped from his pocket as he was looking over the precipice and fell down into the depths and disappeared.

Upon his return Weiss was the picture of health, tanned from his many hours in the hot sun during his transcontinental trek. It was not until then that he learned what had become of his companions.

Although he had prepared to study architecture, his trip has changed his plans and he now intends to enter the field of commercial aviation.

The other robbery was at the roadside stand of George Jose some time ago.

OTHER COUNTY NOTES

One of the $5 bills included in the $50,000 ransom paid out by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh in a vain effort to recover his kidnapped son was believed for a few hours to have turned up in Morrisville.

Leo Clancy, service station attendant employed near the lower bridge approach, was counting his receipts when the $5 note attracted his attention.

The last four numbers checked with the published list of numbers on the ransom bills. He summoned Highway Patrolman Vincent J. Coughlin. Clancy said it was impossible to trace its source, because of the large number of tourists who stop at the gas station.

Then the bill underwent more intensive scrutiny. And it developed that the plate number on the $5 note did not correspond to the list.

Clancy lives at 623 Indiana avenue, Trenton.

William E. Bertles, World War veteran and member of Atkinson Post of the American Legion, of Doylestown, on Monday received the Order of the Purple Heart, a gold heart-shaped war medal, in recognition of merit during the World War.

The medal is heart-shaped and bears the profile of Washington on the one side and the name of the wearer engraved on the other. Accompanying the medal is a bar pin to be worn with the medal.

Mr. Bertles and his brother, Philip Bertles, both served with Company G, 28th Division, while overseas.

PROTEST REMOVAL OF STATION AT WOODMONT

Hearing in Reading R. R. Case
Held Before Public Service Commission

STRIKE OUT EVIDENCE

CHURCHVILLE, July 27.—Residents of Woodmont appeared before the Public Service Commission at Harrisburg, to protest against the railroad's application to discontinue the Reading R. R. station agency.

The protesters demanded opportunity to prove that the discontinuance of the agency would increase the danger of travel to passengers living northwardly to Newtown; that Woodmont was and should continue to be an emergency train-order station with an agent actually in charge during the rush hours where trains in opposite directions pass each other from Southampton to Huntingdon Valley, and cited the Paper Mills wreck in 1919 and other cases.

The railroad objected and evidence was stricken from the record, but the commissioner granted leave to the protesters to file a petition within three weeks requesting the commission to hear testimony as to the danger to passengers involved by said removal, and if the full commission should decide to open up this question testimony thereto would be heard at a further hearing.

From testimony it appears that Woodmont was a liability and Bryn Athyn an asset and the company intends to maintain the latter as an emergency order station with two agents and discontinue Woodmont agent. Bryn Athyn will be cut off from telephone and telegraph communication with intervening stations of 3.3 miles northwardly.

The protesters with the aid of Bucks County subscribers hope to secure an opportunity to testify as to the dangers involved at a hearing in Philadelphia if possible.

FUTURE OF THE WHITE RACE

Figures gleaned from somewhere by a lecturer on that eternal question "Can the white race survive?" show that of the 12,500,000 babies born in the world every year only 2,500,000 are of white parentage. The remaining 10,000,000 include Africans, Orientals and other Asiatics, and all other non-white peoples.

The same lecturer finds that the negro population in America today is 15,000,000, compared with 250,000 in 1790; that the white British people number 67,000,000, while in India alone there are 70,000,000 Mohammedans; that Japan's annual increase in population is more than ten times that of Australia.

Such racial statistics have a way of making alarmists of otherwise rational people. In fact the compiler of the figures given herewith fears the white race is destined to eventual extinction and cited his statistics as "proof" that his fears are well founded.

His own computations, showing the white race to be multiplying at the rate of 2,500,000 a year, disproves his theory of extinction.

A Wesleyan clergyman has aptly remarked that the world was not made for white people; it was made for mankind. And another Anglo-Saxon has observed that white men should not fear those of another color but should feel a tremendous responsibility toward them.

"Morality knows nothing of geographical boundaries or distinctions of race." And racial prejudices and fears are the fruits of differences in culture and customs, not in color.

BACK TO THE FARM

Out of an exchange of population involving 3,000,000 persons between city and country in 1931 the farm gained 252,000 persons, and for good reasons.

The extensive shift of population is easily explained. At a time when millions are idle and even more millions are dissatisfied with their present circumstances it is human nature to hunt acres of diamonds away from home. When the urbanite seeks improvement he often looks for it on the farm, and vice versa.

Several explanations may be offered for the gain in rural population. The movement from the crowded cities into the suburbs continues. Farm sons who sought their fortunes in the big city drifted back home in large numbers during the last three years. And families that have spent all their lives in the city are trying their hand at farming on a small scale until the city again offers a higher standard of living.

During the post-war industrial and agricultural revolution farm machinery forced down farm wages and mass production with mass consumption forced up industrial wages with the result that labor evacuated the country for the city. Today the situation is reversed. For the first time in several years the farmer can find adequate labor at a price he can afford to pay.

Who has sufficient foresight and vision to predict accurately the direction the currents of population will take after the depression has become history?

'MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY'

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

SYNOPSIS

Lola Carewe, night club habituée, receives a death threat, New Year's Eve. Previously her dog and parrot were mysteriously killed. District Attorney Merle K. Dougherty suspects Lola of being the "brains" of the jewel thief ring that has baffled the police. Although her husband, Gaylord Gifford, died practically penniless, Lola lives in luxury. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt places a guard in Lola's penthouse apartment, warning her that she must not be alone in a room at any time. Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother; Chung the butler, Eunice the maid, and Vincent Rowland, an attorney, are present. In the living room, the Commissioner finds a bag belonging to Christine Quires, Lola's guest. It evidently had been used that night, yet Lola informs Colt that Christine is at the Lion's Paw, a roadhouse, where Lola was to have joined her. Colt is surprised to find Mrs. Carewe's room in strange contrast to the surrounding wealth. Lola's own boudoir is a gaudy contradiction of the living room's elegance. Lola refuses to reveal the identity of the young man whose photograph adorns her dresser. Against orders, she enters the guest room alone. A scream follows. Rushing in, Colt finds her on the floor, unconscious. Dr. Hugh Baldwin, a friend, diagnoses the case as a heart attack.

"Chung, do you know if Miss Lola Carewe was right-handed or left-handed?"

CHAPTER NINE

COLT, who had stood with folded arms and knitted brows, turned to the butler, and unexpectedly asked:

"Chung, do you know if Miss Lola Carewe was right-handed or left-handed?"

"Right-handed," answered Chung, with prompt and urbane assurance. "I am left-handed. That makes me observe other people's hands. Miss Lola was right-handed."

At a word of dismissal from Colt, the butler then left, closing the door after him.

"I am concerned," Colt declared, "about her bathrobe."

"What about it, Thatcher?" asked Dougherty, moving forward, with a vague glance at the garment.

"The way it is buttoned, for one thing."

"Buttoned?" Both Dougherty and I looked again at the dressing-robe, as did the now deeply mystified and nervous Doctor Baldwin. None of us noticed anything peculiar about the way it was buttoned.

"You see for yourselves," pursued Colt, "it is a double-breasted dressing-robe buttoned on the right side. We all know when a man puts on any kind of garment, he buttons it invariably on the right side. The important thing is that women always reverse the procedure. It has been my experience that no woman ever buttons her coat, pyjamas or other apparel from left to right, unless the buttons on the left side have been torn away or if she is left-handed. Chung says that Lola was right-handed. Look at her coat."

Colt's acute observation had indeed found here a singular variation from the normal. Lola's body was sheathed in a bath-robe buttoned after the manner of a man.

Dougherty gave a low gasp. "I see what you mean. Perhaps it was put on her by someone else. And someone else made the natural mistake of reversal because he was facing his victim! But why, Thatcher, why?"

"Victim! I've heard enough of this talk!" exclaimed Doctor Baldwin. "What is going on here? It all seems very peculiar."

Thatcher Colt regarded the physician with a stern gaze.

"Doctor Baldwin," he began, "you have given it as your opinion that Lola Carewe is suffering from a heart attack. And yet—if you will pardon a layman's groping—in a heart attack the patient invariably feels suffocated and flushed. Am I not right, doctor?"

"Absolutely right!" agreed Baldwin, with an aggrieved glare. He had paled noticeably.

"Yet again," pursued the chief, "here we find a girl supposed to have a heart attack, but clad in a warm robe, and in an apartment that is noticeably overheated. That, I agree with you, is peculiar."

"Perhaps," admitted the physician with a grudging air.

"Further," pursued Colt, "that livid glow on the face which is visible even under this girl's make-up—is that curious coloring a symptom of heart trouble?"

"Not a common one, but—" "It might be a suspicious factor, mightn't it?"

Baldwin's pallor deepened. "Suspicious?"

"Is it not true," prodded Colt, "that in certain types of poisoning, this flush appears?"

The strong fingers of Doctor Baldwin's great right hand tightened around the frail wrist in his grasp.

"Mr. Commissioner, I must insist upon knowing if there is any reason for these suspicions?" he demanded.

"The color!" prodded Colt impatiently. "Isn't it possibly a symptom of poisoning?"

The physician hesitated, then barked his reply.

"It is one of the phenomena of carbon monoxide poisoning,—but wouldn't that be impossible here?"

There followed a long, ominous silence. Doctor Baldwin stood unmoving and speechless, as no one replied to his question. Then the physician heaved a deep and resigned sigh. With an air of finality, he let Lola's wrist fall from his hand down to the bed, lifelessly.

"I arrived too late," he announced solemnly. "This lady is dead."

With sombre eyes, Thatcher Colt stared unspakingly at the pale and haggard face of Doctor Hugh Baldwin. Then, with a slight frown, the Commissioner turned briskly and walked to the window. Raising it he looked out and down into the abyss of storm, darkness, and a straight drop of twenty-three stories to the sidewalk. One glance and he brought down the window hurriedly.

"Tony—get Mackenzie. He's on the terrace."

In less than a minute I was back with the detective who looked with solemn eyes at the unmoving body on the bed.

"Mackenzie," ordered Colt in a brittle voice, "get downstairs as quick as you can. Get under this window. See what you can find that might have been thrown from this window. Look for broken glass—anything."

"Right away, chief"—and Mackenzie was gone.

"What is that for?" asked Doctor Baldwin vaguely.

"You say it's heart-trouble. I don't believe it. I believe it's poison. By that I mean it's murder—and I'm going to proceed accordingly."

At these words from Thatcher Colt, I was suddenly conscious of the solemn situation in which we found ourselves. The woman who had appealed to us for protection now lay dead at the feet of the Police Commissioner. Not all his care, his guards and admonitions, had served to avert her mysterious fate. At the hour named, Lola Carewe had died—on schedule! Colt was right—it could not be a coincidence.

Dougherty clasped his fat red hands behind his back and stalked over beside Colt. Instinctively, I too moved back from the bed, leaving the physician and the Police Commissioner standing face to face. Baldwin spoke first, his words coming unsteadily as if the intensity of Colt's gaze unsettled him.

"If what you say is true, a police autopsy should be performed," announced Baldwin throatily. "My personal belief is that this is a case of heart failure. But after the insinuations voiced here in the last ten minutes, I must insist on a medico-legal verdict—after a complete autopsy."

And the physician wiped his forehead with a large, silk handkerchief.

"It will take more than an autopsy," declared Dougherty, "to solve all the mysteries of this woman's death."

"I am going to ask you to remain here, doctor," snapped Thatcher Colt briskly. "Until the Medical Examiner arrives. Mind?"

"Quite all right, sir."

As the doctor turned from his bag to reclaim his hat, I saw Colt bend swiftly over the bed, lift a gleaming object from the bag, unobserved by Baldwin, and put it away in the breast pocket of his coat. A moment later he calmly turned and asked the medical man to wait in the living-room and quietly closed the door upon him.

SPORTS

DAVID DOING WELL IN THE NORTHERN LEAGUE

Local baseball fans will be pleased to learn that Larry David, of the Sixth Ward, and former second baseman for the high school nine, is playing the best ball of his career just now in the Northern League with the Ogdensburg team.

Young David has been playing in this fast circuit of Canadian and New York state teams all season and has been hitting well over .300, and covering second sensationally, according to the Ogdensburg Republican Journal.

To quote this paper on a recent game between Brockville, Canada, and Ogdensburg: "Larry David, whom the fans have named 'Frank Merriwell,' was the last man up with his team three runs behind and two men out, the bases loaded when he took a lusty swat at the ball and poled it over the fence for a home-run, sending the three tying runs in ahead of him, and himself scoring the winning run, making the final, 8-7."

"Larry has come through in a number of games this season when a hit meant the game and as a result the fans go 'daffy' when he comes to the plate in a tight spot."

PACE CONTINUES TO BE SET BY HULMEVILLE

LOWER BUCKS COUNTY LEAGUE
Results of Last Night
HIBERNIANS, 4; CROYDON, 1
HULMEVILLE, 6; ODD FELLOWS, 0

(By T. M. Juno)

Hulmeville A. A. continued to set the pace in the Lower Bucks County League by whitewashing the Odd Fellows, 6-0, last night on the Hulmeville grounds. It was the sixth victory for the first half winners and enabled them to keep their full game edge on first place.

Black did the hurling for the winners and gave the Odd Fellows but five bingles. All of the losers blows were singles and Black never was in danger. He failed to issue a pass and set seven Odd Fellows down on strikes.

Comly led the bat toters for the winners, getting two doubles in three times to the plate. His two hits were made off Jones and Ashby who divided the losers' pitching.

The Hibernians took undisputed possession of second place last night by beating Croydon, 4-1, on Sullivan's field. The "Hibs" have a full game lead over the third place Odd Fellows, and are but one game away from the league-leading Hulmeville club.

"Eddie" Sullivan and "Wils" Holland were the hurlers in the pitchers' duel. Both allowed but four hits and both fanned eight batters. After the first two innings Holland settled down and pitched shut-out ball.

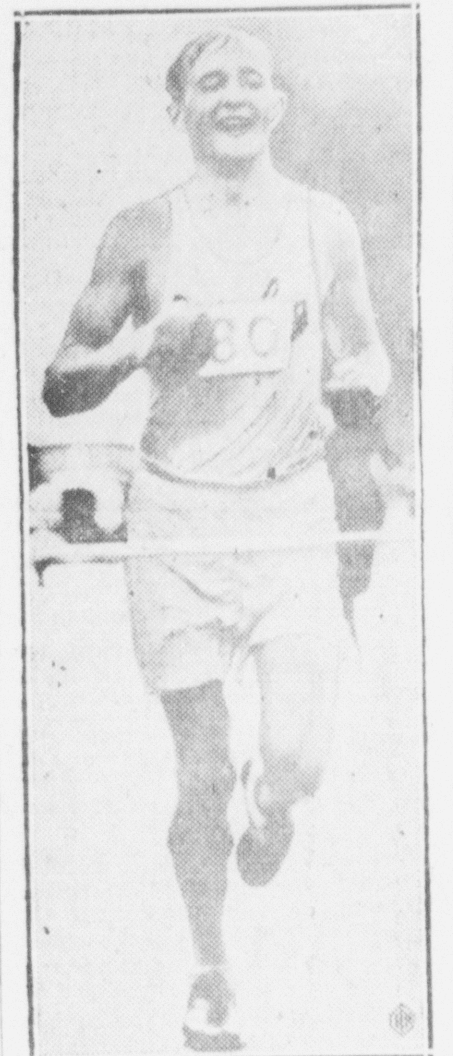

The winners counted two runs in the first when Dougherty singled. Connors fanned and Dugan reached first on a fielder's choice, Dougherty going out at third. Lysack scored Dugan with a triple to center. Lysack scored on Karp's error.

Two more were scored in the second when Dougherty slammed out a home run with Sullivan on base. Parell's single, a fielder's choice and Strump's double scored the losers' only run.

U. S. Olympic Hope

Hans Oldag of Buffalo (above) is one of the three U. S. entries in the Marathon at the Olympic Games. Oldag, an employee of the Buffalo Police Department, won his place on the team when he romped home first in the pre-Olympic Marathon at Salisbury, Md.

U. S. Olympic Hope

Though defeated by Bill Carr in the 400 meter run, Ben Eastman, (above) Stanford's great half miler, is figured to score for Uncle Sam in either the 400 or 800 meter runs. Carr had to break the world's record to be at Eastman in the Olympic trials.

U. S. Olympic Hope

Jack Keller, Ohio State's great timber topper, is Uncle Sam's chief hope in the 110 meter hurdle event at the Olympic Games. Keller defeated George Saling of Iowa and Percy Beard of the N. Y. A. C. in the final trials, equalling the world record of 9:14.4.

U. S. Olympic Hope

Tom Ottey (above) of Michigan State will carry Uncle Sam's colors in the 10,000 meter (6 miles 376 yards) event at the Olympic Games. Ottey won the trials by thirty-five yards but will face keen foreign competition in the Olympics, particularly from Finland.
